

Archived Information

Richard W. Riley
U.S. Secretary of Education

Marshall S. Smith
Acting U.S. Deputy Secretary of Education

Terry K. Peterson
Counselor to the Secretary

Alan L. Ginsburg
Planning and Evaluation Service

December 1997

The full text of this public domain publication is available at the Department's home page at <http://www.ed.gov/PFIE/titlei.html>
and in alternate formats upon request.
For more information, please contact us at:

U.S. Department of Education
Partnership for Family Involvement in Education
600 Independence Avenue, SW
Washington, DC 20202-8173

<http://www.ed.gov/PFIE>
E-mail: Partner@ed.gov
Telephone: 1-800-USA-LEARN
FIRS: 1-800-877-8339, 8 a.m. – 8 p.m., ET, M–F

Feel free to photocopy or reprint.

Contents

Foreword	v
Introduction	1
Step 1: Get Started	5
High academic standards and high expectations	5
National checkpoints of progress	7
Taking stock of standards at your school	8
Activity Sheet A: Taking Stock of Standards	9
Step 2: Write the Compact	11
The shared responsibilities of the compact	11
Using the framework of shared responsibility	13
Activity Sheet B: Make Your Commitment	16
Step 3: Use Your School's Compact	17
Get the word out	17
Provide the necessary support	18
Put your compact into action	18
Activity Sheet C: Check Your Pulse	19
Step 4: Evaluate the Results of the Compact	21
Indicators of success	21
How to get data	23
Lessons for using data	24
Collect and use your own data	25
Activity Sheet D: Student Performance	26
Activity Sheet E: Key Indicators	27
Step 5: Strengthen Your Compact	31
Build on your success	31
Identify areas in need of improvement	31
Develop solutions	31
Brainstorming session	32
Conclusion	34
Activity Sheet F: Take Action	35
Appendixes	37
A. Examples of Compacts	39
B. The Community Commitment	45
C. Key Resources	47
D. The Partnership for Family Involvement in Education	54
Survey and Comment Form	60

“What we want to do is to challenge every principal,
every teacher, every parent
to have a written compact to outline their expectations and their responsibilities for helping every child learn to high standards.”

President Clinton

Speech at the Vice President's Family Reunion Conference

Families and Learning

June 25, 1997

Foreword

All across America there are communities pulling together to strengthen education. Parents, teachers, and community and business leaders, in every part of our country, are creating compacts to build and strengthen partnerships for improved student learning.

A compact is (1) a commitment to sharing responsibility for student learning and (2) an action plan for a family-school-community partnership to help children in your school get a high-quality education. This user-friendly handbook is designed to walk your family-school compact team through the steps of building a compact. It provides information, strategies, examples, and checklists to help parents, educators, and community members develop effective, workable compacts that can improve your school and increase student achievement. The handbook includes activity sheets to assist your partners in the creation and use of a compact.

A Compact for Learning is part of a continuous improvement series that will highlight key issues of interest to teachers, parents, and principals who want to make their schools better and work towards standards of excellence. These materials are available on the U.S. Department of Education Web site with links to resources, examples, and other school improvement aids.

This handbook and the Web site are both works in progress. We welcome your comments and hope that you will share your experiences with family-school compacts. Please mail your ideas or a copy of your compact to:

The Partnership for Family Involvement in Education
600 Independence Avenue SW
Washington, DC 20202-8173

Many of these compacts and tips will be put on the Partnership Web site, which is available through the U.S. Department of Education's home page at www.ed.gov/PFIE.

We look forward to hearing from you.

Richard W. Riley
U.S. Secretary of Education

Introduction

“Better education is everybody’s business.”

—*The Partnership for Family
Involvement in Education*

Today, we benefit from 30 years of research showing that families are important educators of their children. Until recently, however, many parents were told, “Hands off, you don’t know how to do it.” Not any more.

Truly, this is a new time in education, a time calling for the widest participation from school staff, family members, and students. All are asking, “What do we need to know? What are our responsibilities? What are the benefits of our actions? How can we work together?”

Family involvement in education makes a difference: in fact, it can make the difference in a student’s achievement at school and in life. Many schools now sponsor family involvement initiatives and activities to improve student learning and to support effective school performance through family-school-community partnerships.

Title I of the Improving America’s Schools Act of 1994 supports local efforts to help children meet challenging standards and to get families involved.¹ Every school receiving Title I funds must develop a compact. The compact is a document that clarifies what families and schools can do to help children reach high standards. It serves as a clear reminder of everybody’s responsibility to take action at school and at home so that children can learn what is required of them. With the potential to create consensus and action, the compact defines the mutual responsibilities we all have for improving education now.

What is a compact?

A compact is a written commitment indicating how all members of a school community—parents, teachers, principals, students, and concerned community members—agree to share responsibility for student learning.

Writing a family-school compact provides an opportunity to create new partnerships in your school community. Principals and teachers, parents and other family members, students, and community members all have a role to play in helping students learn and achieve to standards of excellence. As you build your team, reach out, think big, and be creative. Use the development of a compact as a way to get parents and others who have not been closely connected to the school involved in the process. Bringing together a team to talk about your school’s needs and the shared responsibilities of your school community can be as important as the task of developing a compact.

¹Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, amended by the Improving America’s Schools Act of 1994, is designed to enable schools to provide opportunities for low-income and low-achieving children to acquire the knowledge and skills needed to meet the challenging standards developed for all children.

Signal Hill Elementary School Compact

Long Beach, California

The School

The staff and parents/guardians at Signal Hill Elementary School have high expectations of themselves and of the students at the school. In an effort to provide the highest quality instructional program to the students at Signal Hill Elementary School and to show how the school and family are working together to educate the children at Signal Hill Elementary, the staff and parents/guardians of Signal Hill Elementary School agree to implement the following programs and activities:

- Signal Hill Elementary School will provide an academic program that is rigorous and challenging and provide an accelerated math and science program.
- Signal Hill Elementary School staff will provide intersession and after-school enrichment programs

The family-school compact from Signal Hill Elementary School in Long Beach, California, focuses on improving students' academic achievement by setting high expectations for all students and for all of the school's partners. The compact is only one piece of a larger family-school partnership focused on shared responsibility. Notice how the commitments within the compact integrate the shared responsibilities of the compact into a cohesive plan of action. More examples of compacts may be found in Appendix A.

Purpose of the handbook

This action handbook explores the steps for compact implementation as illustrated in the diagram. The handbook is intended for the use of the compact team, whether it is a new group or an existing group, such as the site-based management council, a family-school advisory group, the local PTA, or any other group that works closely with the school.

Developing a partnership compact is good experience for any school. This handbook is intended to serve a variety of schools at all levels—elementary or secondary, Title I or not. If you already have a compact, the handbook can help you use, evaluate, and strengthen it. Just jump in at the appropriate step. At the end of each section is an activity sheet. Putting ideas on paper will help to focus your thinking and planning.

“ It is not enough to have high expectations or set challenging standards. We must put standards of excellence into action in the classroom. ”

Richard W. Riley
U.S. Secretary of Education

